The Kindergarten Book of Sayings

Grade: Kindergarten
Presented by: JoAnn Margo, Kindergarten Teacher, Birchwood Core Knowledge School, Duluth, MN
Length of Unit: 12 lessons, with 2 community presentations

I. ABSTRACT
The kindergarten sayings are explored and discussed, one in each lesson, with students illustrating a page in a book for most sayings showing themselves in a situation in their lives where the saying could be used. The sayings are also displayed as banners or posters in the room and used by the teacher when applicable.

This project begins in September (A place for everything and everything in its place) and ends in May (April showers bring May flowers). The book has most sayings written in rebus style allowing students to “read” their books when they might not remember what their pictures show. The books are displayed as works in progress in a winter Core Knowledge Museum, and again at the end of the year during a kindergarten authors’ autograph session.

II. OVERVIEW
A. Concept Objectives
   1. Student will gain an understanding of a common saying and learn to use the saying as it applies to the students’ own life situations.
B. Content Objectives
   1. Kindergarten sayings and phrases
C. Skill Objectives
   1. Addressed in individual lessons.

III. BACKGROUND KNOWLEDGE
A. For Teachers:
B. For Students:
   Mad as a Wet Hen and Other Funny Idioms by Marvin Terban.

IV. RESOURCES
B. Mad as a Wet Hen and Other Funny Idioms by Marvin Terban.

V. LESSONS
Lesson One: Do unto others as you would have them do unto you.
A. Objectives
   1. Lesson Content: “Do unto others as you would have them do unto you”.
   2. Concept Objective: Gain an understanding of a common saying and learn how to use the saying as it applies to the students’ own life situations.
   3. Skill Objective: Apply the saying to real life situations through a discussion of past experiences and by practicing kind acts toward classmates to encourage kind actions by all students.

B. Materials

C. Background notes

D. Key Vocabulary
   1. Unto = on to
   2. “Would have” = would like

E. Procedures/Activities:
   1. Teacher will recite the saying “Do unto others as you would have them do unto you”.
   2. Students will brainstorm the saying’s possible meaning.
   3. Students will listen to the teacher give the true meaning and origin of the saying (Hirsh, p. 110).
   4. Teacher will read an example of the saying (Hirsh, p. 110).
   5. Teacher will apply the saying to the teacher’s and students’ own lives, such as social situations between peers in the classroom or school situations using names of school workers and students.
   6. Students will discuss times in their own life where the saying applies.
   7. Students will discuss how to be a friend by listing kind things they can do for their friends and things they would like their friends to do to/for them.
   8. Students are assigned a friend to play with for a short free time. They are to remember all the kind things that their friend did for them.
   9. Students are gathered together to discuss acts of kindness during free time and apply them to the saying “Do unto others as you would have them do unto you”.
  10. Students will draw a picture to illustrate the saying on the cover of The Kindergarten Book of Sayings (Appendix 1), and write their names on the line. Save the covers.
  11. Teacher will display the saying as a poster or banner and refer to the saying when appropriate.

F. Evaluation/Assessment
   1. Students are evaluated on the appropriateness of their responses during discussions, actions during free time, and the quality and appropriateness of the drawing on the book cover.

Lesson Two: A place for everything and everything in its place.

A. Objectives

   4. Teacher will read an example of the saying (Hirsh, p. 112).
   5. Teacher will apply the saying to a personal experience where (s)he wanted something really badly, and found a way to get (do) it. Teacher may want to talk about something (s)he wants right now, and is trying to find the way to get it.
   6. Students will discuss times in their own life where the saying applies.
   7. Students will discuss possible ways of achieving things that they want badly right now.
   8. Teacher will display the saying as a poster or banner in the room and use the saying when appropriate.
F. Evaluation/Assessment
   1. Students are evaluated on the appropriateness of their responses during discussions.

Lesson Five: Look before you leap.
A. Objectives
   1. Lesson Content: “Look before you leap”.
   2. Concept Objective: Gain an understanding of a common saying and learn how to use the saying as it applies to the students’ own life situations.
   3. Skill Objective: Apply the saying to real life situations through a discussion of past experiences and by making a drawing of themselves in a situation where they made a careful decision, or where they rushed into something too quickly.
B. Materials
   2. Appendix 3
   3. Markers
C. Background notes
D. Key Vocabulary
   1. Leap: Jump.
E. Procedures/Activities
   1. Teacher will recite the saying “Look before you leap”.
   2. Students will brainstorm the saying’s possible meaning.
3. Students will listen to the teacher give the true meaning of the saying (Hirsh, p. 111).
4. Teacher will read an example of the saying (Hirsh, p. 111).
5. Teacher will apply the saying to a life situation where (s)he made a decision too quickly and was sorry for it, or thought something through for a while and was glad (s)he didn’t do it.
6. Students will discuss times in their own life where the saying applies.
7. Students will discuss a time in their lives when they made a decision too quickly and another time when they thought about something for a while and decided not to do it, and are glad that they thought it through!
8. Students will make a drawing on the rebus page (Appendix 3). Assemble the books, appendix 1 - 11. The rest of the sayings have rebus pictures, so it is easy for children to know that they are making their drawing on the right page. If your order is different, please put them in the order that you will be teaching them to make it easier for the children to find the right page.
9. Teacher will display the saying as a poster or banner and use the saying when appropriate.

F. Evaluation/Assessment
1. Students are asked to read the saying to the teacher, and tell the story in the drawing as it applies to the saying.

Lesson Six: Great oaks from little acorns grow.

A. Objectives
   1. Lesson Content: “Great oaks from little acorns grow”.
   2. Concept Objective: Gain an understanding of a common saying and learn how to use the saying as it applies to the students’ own life situations.
   3. Skill Objective: Apply the saying to real life situations through a discussion of past experiences and by making a drawing of themselves practicing a skill that they became very good at.

7. Students will make a drawing on the rebus page (Appendix 6).
8. Teacher will display the saying as a poster or banner and use the saying when appropriate.
9. At this point in the school year, our school has a Core Knowledge Museum where work pertaining to Core topics from grades pre k - 6 made throughout the year are on display for parents and the community to tour during an evening, with other entertainment provided. I put the “Kindergarten Book of Sayings” on a table, with a sign that says “Work in Progress” so people know that we will be adding more drawings on the unfinished pages of the books. The sayings posters and banners from the room could be included to bring more attention to the display. Tour the museum as a class during the day, so any student not able to attend with family can still see the displays, especially everything made by the kindergarten class!

F. Evaluation/Assessment
1. Students are asked to read the saying to the teacher, and tell the story in the drawing as it applies to the saying.

   8. Teacher will display the saying as a poster or banner and use the saying when appropriate.

F. Evaluation/Assessment
   1. Students are asked to read the saying to the teacher, and tell the story in the drawing as it applies to the saying.

Lesson Twelve: My favorite saying is . . .

A. Objectives
   1. Lesson Content: Review of all sayings in their books.
   2. Concept Objective: Gain a greater understanding of common sayings and review meanings in preparation for the authors’ autograph session where people will be asking them questions about their books.
   3. Skill Objective: Review the sayings by choral reading, discussing meanings and their drawings. Choose a favorite saying and copy the words.

B. Materials
   2. Appendix 11
   3. Pencil

C. Background notes

D. Key Vocabulary
   Review lessons I - VI for vocabulary.

E. Procedures/Activities
1. Teacher will recite the sayings, one at a time, children will choral read each saying after the teacher.
2. Students will review the sayings meaning.
3. Students will discuss the drawings they made as they relates to each saying.
4. Students will find their favorite saying and discuss why they like it best.
5. Students will copy the words of their favorite saying on the last page of the book (Appendix 12).

F. Evaluation/Assessment
1. Students are assessed for understanding by the appropriateness of responses during discussion and the quality of work copying the words from the rebus page to the last page of the book. Students are asked to read their favorite saying to the teacher.

VI. CULMINATING ACTIVITY
Invite parents and staff to attend a “Kindergarten Authors’ Autograph Session”. Make autograph books with a cover (Appendix 12) and blank pages for visitors to use to collect the children’s autographs because they are the authors! I used the school library and arranged the tables in two rows down the sides of the room. Children were positioned with backs against the wall, with the table in front of them, their own books spread out on the table facing the visitors. Each child had their sayings book along with other books they had authored. People talked to the authors and asked them questions about their books. There was another table set up in the library with books made by the whole class. There were also tables set up with activity sheets for parents to take home and use during the summer. I positioned parent volunteers at the door to hand out the autograph books, asking families to only take one book. This activity was done on the last day of school in connection with a graduation ceremony and snack following the autograph session.
